Georgetown University Law School Law Library. This handy guide links to European Union regional treaties on protection of animals, legislation on animal welfare from a number of countries, and European Union directives on farm animals, transport and animal experimentation. The Foreign Law Guide referenced in this document is accessible through the Library’s GO-CAT online catalog.

National Agricultural Law Center:

The Center’s section on Animal Welfare provides extensive links to Federal statutes and regulations agricultural animals. Links are provided to a case law index, Congressional Research Service Reports on animal agriculture and environmental issues, and an agricultural law bibliography.

National Association for Biomedical Research (NABR) Animal Law Section:

The Animal Law Section “focuses on the potentially disruptive and rapidly growing area of animal law. Animal rights advocates are using increasingly sophisticated and coordinated legal strategies in an attempt to incrementally change our laws as they relate to animals. The potential consequences for biomedical research are not readily apparent, but it is clear that many animal rights organizations and animal rights lawyers believe research on animals should be severely restricted or prohibited completely. This Web site is intended to serve as a resource for those who wish to learn more about animal law.”

Official California Legislative Information:

The official site for California legislative information. The site is maintained by the Legislative Counsel of California, the nonpartisan public agency that drafts legislative proposals. The web site’s bill information is updated nightly after the Legislature has completed its work for the day. The link California Law takes you to the California Codes, and the link Statutes (Chaptered Bills), gives you access to statutes from 1993 forward, by keyword, chapter number or chapter year.

Open CRS: Congressional Research Reports for the People:

The Congressional Research Service is an arm of the Library of Congress devoted to providing for Congress research and analysis on legislative issues. CRS analysts meet with Congressional members and staffers, and they compile reports and issue briefs for them. Open CRS is a project of the Center for Democracy & Technology that serves as a centralized location to learn about the Congressional Research Service and search for CRS reports that have been released to the public by members of Congress.

Pet Abuse.com:

A national animal protection organization that researches and tracks incidents of criminal animal cruelty. The site contains numerous links data about animal abuse. Among them: interactive maps allowing the public to view cases of animal abuse in their area; a convicted abuser search link that is used by humane societies, shelters and rescues across the country to search abusers by name; graphical statistics about animal cruelty and those committing it; a listing of all upcoming court dates for criminal animal cruelty cases in the database.
