

Note from the Chief Technical Editor

As the Chief Technical Editor, I am greatly honored to present the first issue of The University of the Pacific Law Review, Volume 49. This issue contains a collection of scholarly articles, including the “Marijuana Symposium” series, and student-written Comments. I am thrilled to introduce these articles as they contain fascinating topics and outstanding analysis. I am also honored to introduce a student-written article as a part of the “Marijuana Symposium” series, as the student adamantly edited his work to create an excellent addition to the issue and legal study.

As the Chief Technical Editor, I am tasked with meticulously examining articles throughout the editing process. It is my job to assist the Editor-in-Chief and Chief Managing Editor in the production of every issue. The editing process includes multiple rounds of review by myself, and the other members of the Board. I also maintain the McGeorge Style Manual, a supplemental citation manual that ensures our articles are cited consistently, with an easy-to-understand format. My goal is to create outstanding contributions to legal scholarship that are both error-free and reader-friendly.

On behalf of The University of the Pacific Law Review, I would like to thank Professor Vitiello for bringing us this novel symposium series. With marijuana law quickly shifting in California, the series is perfectly timed to guarantee a fascinating exchange between scholars about the benefits and burdens of California’s current marijuana law regime. Professor Vitiello’s enthusiasm for the topic has facilitated the amazing discussions contained in the symposium articles.

Issue 1 is due to the dedication of the Volume 49 Primary Editors and Staff Writers who labored tirelessly during the editing process. Special thanks are due to the Chief Managing Editor Kyle Sproul, for his direction and dedication to the production of this Volume. Additional thanks are due to the Chief Articles Editor Albert Mendoza and Chief Symposium Editor Nick McKinney, both of whom provided guidance to the staff and, mostly importantly, an encouraging attitude. Lastly, significant thanks are due to the Editor-in-Chief Kendall Fisher for her incredible diligence and brilliance in leading us into the next Volume of The University of the Pacific Law Review. We hope you enjoy this issue.

Isabella S. Blizard
Chief Technical Editor
The University of the Pacific Law Review,
Volume 49